DEDICATION

.... to all the millions of women who have lived in our area since the first weary travellers found our valleys and decided to settle here.

.... unknown and unconsciously carrying out their work and domestic tasks, they built the net of their hamlets, villages and towns leaving few imprints of their lives but the examples of hard work and caring to the next generation.

.... they include a woman who, in the C18 married a widower with 7 children, most of them sons, and went on to have 11 of her own raising 14 to adulthood [including a daughter who was to die in childbirth aged 21]. She continued to work on the family farm whilst either pregnant or breast feeding.

.... they include a mother of 6 who brought up her children in a 2 up 2 down whilst she and her husband worked in a cotton mill. She watched their 5 boys go to war, and saw them return. A son emigrated to Detroit to work in the motor industry, to be followed by her daughter: she would cross the Atlantic several times to visit them before her death. A quiet but courageous life, but not exceptional.

.... and the mothers, sisters, cousins, friends and teachers of our “exceptional” women who gave them the tools to take on the world. And those who gave up their own chances to give them a future in their chosen professions.

We are not forgetting the men of our area, but this is dedicated to the ½ of our population too often forgotten by history: our very special women.

TAMESIDE'S EXTRAORDINARY WOMEN

What follows are brief biographies of some of the women followed by details of the others whose biographies are less detailed. Several attempts were made to contact those still active for their permission given to include them. Acknowledgements are included of the many who have worked tirelessly to bring these special women to our notice.

MARGARET ASHTON

Margaret was the daughter of Thomas Ashton [a cotton manufacturer in Hyde] and Elizabeth Gair. She was born in Withington on 19th January, 1856, and brought up at Ford Bank Estate, Didsbury with 6 brothers and sisters. She was a pacifist, philanthropist and suffragist. She was a voluntary manager of Flowery Fields School and a governor of Manchester Grammar School for Girls. She died on 15th October 1937.

She is noted for being the 1st Woman City Councillor for Manchester [Withington] in 1908. She served on the Manchester Public Health Committee and the Child Welfare Subcommittee. In 1914, she co-founded the Manchester Babies' Hospital.

At the outbreak of war, she split from the NUWSS and Suffragette movement. She was a signatory of the Open Christmas Letter which was a call for peace to the Women of Germany and Austria which was published in January, 1915. She started the Manchester Branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. In 1921, she was labelled, incorrectly, a 'friend of the enemy.'

Her legacy includes a bi-annual Memorial Lecture, a seat in Manchester Town Hall for the Lady Mayoress and guests, and the renaming of Harpurhey High School as the Margaret Ashton 6th Form College.

Her brother, Thomas Gair Ashton was the 1st Baron Ashton of Hyde, an industrialist and philanthropist. He was a Liberal Politician and Peer. A first cousin was Helen Potter, the mother of Beatrix Potter.

FRANCES LOTTE BALFOUR-BROWNE

Frances Lotte Stephens was born on 31st December, 1904, to Ira Stephens and Elise Charlotte Lindeman. She had 2 sisters: Frida and Margot. In 1911, they were living in Sparkhill, Birmingham where her father was a machine belting traveller. The family moved to Ashton where her father owned a leather tanning factory. She attended Fairfield School for Girls. She studied at Manchester University gaining a BSc in Botany in 1926, and her MSc in 1928 having been awarded the Grisedale Scholarship for Advanced Research. In 1939, she was living at 15A South End, Kensington. She married John William Alexander Francis Balfour-Browne in 1944. Both Frances and her husband died in 2001: he in Kirriemuir and she in South East Hampshire.

She was the Scientific Assistant in the Department of Botany at the British Museum in 1936. In 1939, she gave her occupation as mycologist, and was a first aider based at the museum. She was the Senior Experimental Officer at the Natural History Museum in 1946, and Principal Scientific Officer by 1955. She retired in 1967.

ELLEN BARNES

Ellen was the daughter of millowner John Cheetham and his wife, Emma [née Ra/elynor]. Her siblings included Agnes [1833-1931], John Frederick [1835-1916 who married Beatrice Emma Astley in 1887], Charles Arthur [1836-1853] and Francis Henry [1844-1922 married to Emily Blacklock]. Ellen grew up at Eastwood House, Stalybridge, now part of the bird sanctuary.

In 1864, she married James Richardson Barnes in Stalybridge Congregational Church. He was the son of Thomas Barnes MP: the Rev Gwyther and Rev Samuel Martin [Westminster] officiating. She was to live most of the rest of her life living on the Shropshire/Welsh border including Quinan, Oswestry and Weston Rhyn. Following the death of her husband in 1899, her sister Agnes lived with her. Ellen died on the 23rd February, 1920, at 'Brookside', Weston Bryn, Shropshire. Probate was granted to Wilfred Ormrod Bailey, William Edward Frith [estate agent], and solicitor Charles Edward Hutton. She left £453,113 some of which was to the Mayor and Aldermen of Stalybridge borough.

She was a committed educationalist and supporter of local organisations but never forget the town of her birth. Her father died in 1886 leaving monies to Stalybridge Congregational Church

In 1925, The Ellen Barnes Memorial Lectures began taking place in the winter months. The charitable instruction included 'for the benefit of the library at Stalybridge either in the purchase of books or in the payment of lectures on Literary subjects as the council shall think fit.' The trust was closed in 2012.

MARY ELIZABETH BARNES

Mary Elizabeth Gwyther was born in Stalybridge to Rev John Howe Gwyther [Congregationalist] and Deborah Wilberfosse in 1864. She had 3 brothers: James Theodore, Cecil Harry Wilberforce, and Harry Earlston and a sister, Agnes Dora. In 1871, she was staying with her grandparents at 10, Tynwald Terrace, Shelford. She married Harold Alfred Barnes, a prominent millowner, on 17th Febuary, 1885 in Birkenhead. They had 2 children: George Le Maire, and Mary Ellen. In 1929, Harold gave the family home in Bolton for use as a nursery, and the family moved to their home Hillcroft, Weston Rhyn, Shropshire. She died on 23rd February, 1942, at the Cottage Hospital, Chirk, outliving her husband and son. She left £1769/ 6/ 6.

Mary was a non-militant, non-party philanthropist and suffragist. She was a member of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Society. The Bolton Guild was unable to hand out funds during a coal strike, and she wanted to know the best way to help: '....the amount of preventable poverty and the hard conditions under which so many people live. It all went to prove how money was not always the best means of helping people but that personal service and sympathetic care might do much more good.' In the First World War she started a Tipperary Club in Farnworth. 900 members sewed and made parcels for the serving men. In 1922, she was the first female councillor for the town and a county magistrate. In 1934, she had been on the Board of Guardians for 25 years and was a JP and OBE. 'Probably the most prominent public woman in town.' In 2018, Farnworth celebrated her life and pioneering work for women's suffrage with a plaque in Farnworth Park.

DAME MARGARET BECKETT

Margaret Mary Jackson was born in Ashton on 15th January, 1943. She grew up on Wilshaw Grove and was educated at St Mary's Junior School, Notre Dame High School and UMIST. She took an apprenticeship in metallurgy, training as a metallurgist and becoming an Experiment Officer. At the same time, she was a Labour Party researcher.

In 1970, she was a Labour Party officer and advisor to Judith Hart. She was elected the MP for Lincoln in 1974 losing her seat in 1979.

She married Lionel Beckett in 1979 at Patricroft Registry Office.

In 1983, she was elected MP for Derby South. She was the Deputy Leader of the Labour Party under John Smith until 1994. In 2001 she was the 1st female Secretary of State for the Environment. By 2006, she was Britain's 1st female Foreign Secretary. In 2013, she was awarded Dame Commander of the British Empire for Public and Political Services. At the present time [2018] she is the longest serving woman MP in the Commons.

She enjoys caravanning and writing. She is also a supporter of Derby County FC.

Researcher: Margaret Beckett's Constituency Office

Sharman Rhona Newth was born in 1951 in Droylsden, the fourth and final daughter of Leslie Newth and Bette Curel. She attended Fairfield High School for Girls acquiring many life lessons such as respect and care for others and self-belief. She joined what is now the Royal Bank of Scotland rising from post clerk to Regional Facilities' Manager. She married Grahame Birtles in 1987 and has always lived in Tameside. She took early retirement in 1996 but is very involved with local groups including The Shed where she is a Trustee, and she is a Governor of Fairfield High School for Girls and a member of the Soroptimists. In her spare time, she enjoys Local History, football and dancing. And walking her elderly dog!

In 1981, she became the youngest magistrate in the country serving on the Manchester City Bench: on the Adult, Youth, Family and Licensing panels, was Deputy Bench Chairman then Chairman of the Bench from 2009-2012, transferring to the Supplemental Bench in 2013. She was appointed Deputy Lieutenant in 2009 and in a ceremony at Dukinfield Town Hall she was made High Sheriff of Greater Manchester 2015-16: the second High Sheriff from Tameside, and the first female, making sure all entertainment was done within the Borough.

She supports many charities including being the Deputy Chair of the Cotton District and Barnes Charity, the Duchy of Lancaster Benevolent Fund, is a Trustee of the Manchester Guardian Society and Manchester High Sheriffs' Police Trust Fund, the Christie Hospital Foundation, the Guide Bridge Amateur Theatre, the Donkey Sanctuary, the Manchester Dogs' Home and has been a Patron of Marie Curie Nursing since 2013. She is a patron of Willow Wood Hospice and a trustee of SAFE Networks which deals with female exploitation and modern day slavery. She is Chairman of the Manchester & District Hospital Choirs Committee whose Christmas Concerts raise money for CLIC Sargent. She was delighted to become Honorary Colonel of the Greater Manchester Army Cadet Force.

'I absolutely celebrate that as a woman I was able to progress in the bank...when I started my career in 1969, there were only whispers of an organisation called Women's Lib.'

FANNI BOGDANOV

Fanni Bogdanov was born in Dusseldorf, Germany, in 1927. She came to Britain from Affltrach, as part of the Kindertransport in 1939 aged 11. Her parents were incarcerated in several concentration camps: Dachau, Bergan-Belsen and Auschwitz. She was taken in by Quakers Mr and Mrs Clement of Haughton Green who tutored her before she entered Fairfield School: Mrs Clement's brother paying the school fees. She learnt Latin and gained Distinctions in 7 of her 8 subjects. She left school aged 16 working for a time at Stalybridge Library whilst taking an external London University Course. She sat the Entrance Exam for Manchester University and won a scholarship to study French in 1945. In 1947, she travelled to Germany to be reunited with her parents – her mother later joining her in Manchester. She spent her career at Manchester University as undergraduate, post-graduate, lecturer, reader gaining her MA then PHD becoming Professor. She retired in 1994.

She died in August, 2013, aged 86. In her will she left £1. 5 million to Manchester University for prizes for high performing students and monies for a series of lectures around Holocaust Memorial Day.

She was an outstanding scholar of medieval literature and inspired by Eugène Vinaver, she researched ancient and medieval French texts being the leading scholar in the field of Malory and King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table. She was awarded the Prix Excalibur in 1997. It was said that she had no sympathy for anyone working on material written later than 1300! This 'kind-hearted motivated individual' 'devoted her life to studying and teaching.'

There is a Blue Plaque dedicated to her at Fairfield School.

KATE BRADBURY GRIFFITHS

Kate Bradbury was born in Ashton on 28th August, 1854, to Charles T Bradbury and Elizabeth A Tomlins and she was baptised on 21st November. She was brought up at Hall Green Terrace, Dukinfield, and had a brother and sister both of whom died young. Her father was a cotton manufacturer employing 120 men and women, and as a child she was educated by a governess. For a time her father was the manager of the print works at Buckton Vale and they lived at Buckton Grange. The family later moved to Riversvale Hall in Ashton where they were friends with another Egyptologist living nearby, Aquila Dodgson.

She was very involved with the Egyptian Exploration Society and the Department of Egyptology at UCL. She accompanied her friend Amelia Edwards, known as the godmother of Egyptology, on a lecture tour of America. Following her friend's death, she established the Edwards' Professor of Egyptian Archaeology and Philology at University College, London: William M Flinders Petrie being the first postholder. She continued to coordinate the unpacking and display of antiquities and collaborated in the translation of ancient Egyptian texts.

She married Francis Llewelyn Griffith in Ashton in 1896 and they lived with her father at Riversdale Hall, Bardsley. Francis was appointed the Honorary Professor of Egyptology at Manchester University. On the 1901 census where he is described as an Egyptologist, she has no occupation. She died in Silverdale on 2nd March 1902. Francis lived for a time at Riversvale Hall with Kate's father, Charles Timothy Bradbury until he remarried. Their legacies formed the foundation of the Ashmolean Museum in Oxford. He died in 1934.

LILIAN BUCKOKE

Lilian Doris Buckoke was the daughter of steel worker Harry Urmston and Emma Lee. She was born in Stalybridge on 2nd June 1914 growing up on Copley Street, Stalybridge with her sisters Mary and Hannah and brother Harry. She attended St Paul's School, was a Sunday School teacher there and a Girl Guide. Although she had passed the scholarship for secondary school, her father couldn't afford to let her go which meant she couldn't fulfil her dream of being a doctor. She was radicalized during the Great Depression after seeing the queue of hungry, depressed and ashamed people outside Stalybridge Labour Exchange. Leaving school, she was an apprentice florist before becoming an SRN and midwife at the Lake Hospital [Ashton].

In 1936, she joined the Spanish Medical Unit. In 1937 she left for London then Spain with the Medical Service attached 15th Army Corps before joining the International Brigade. Lilian was based on the Aragon Front at Teruel, and in a railway tunnel near Flix. She treated the wounded from the Battle of Ebro in a cave which had beds for 120 patients. She returned home in September, 1938 to raise support. Stalybridge raised £700 for the Nurse Urmston Fund. She returned to Spain laden with carbolic, soaps, bandages and disinfectants. She was interned in France in March, 1939, in a camp in a sandy desert with a small spring which supplied water for 15,000 to 20,000 people. Later she was with the British Army in Dunkirk. She later served as a nurse in Egypt, Syria, Sicily and Italy being injured by shell fire treating men at Anzio. She also acted as a journalist in Malaysia and for the Daily Express and Daily Mail.

She had married John Buckoke in Cairo Cathedral in June, 1945. She died on 17th October, 1990 aged 76 at Shardethorne, East Grinstead although she lived in Marylebone, London. She was given a military funeral organised by her husband.

JENNY CAMPBELL

Jennifer Bernice Sproson was born in Hyde in 1961 to Philip Sproson and Dorothy Bernice Petch. Her family members include the Hyde based business Norgrove Builders, and Petch Printers. Jenny married Andrew Campbell in 1983: they have 2 sons – Richard and Thomas. She breeds and shows flatcoat retrievers.

Jenny is an ex-career banker turned business woman specialist and cash machine entrepreneur.

After leaving school age 16 to begin her working life counting cash in a bank branch, she climbed through the ranks to become one of the few senior female bankers at the time in the UK. Following 30 years in the banking trade, in 2006 she left the corporate world for a new challenge – to turn around a failing cash machine business owned by RBS. She launched a major operational restructure of Hanco ATM Systems, turning it from a business that was making a huge loss in competitive markets to a thriving profitable entity operating across Europe. She later bought-out the business from RBS becoming the major shareholder, later relaunching it as YourCash Europe Ltd. This quickly expanded to become a leading provider of ATMs to the retail market across Europe, handling millions of ATM transactions and processing billions in cash value. She sold Your Cash in October 2016 to a company listed on the New York stock exchange.

In 2017, she joined the TV programme ‘Dragons’ Den’.

Previously awarded Business Woman of the Year in 2014, she stays true to her favourite business motto: live by corporate standards, but breathe like an entrepreneur.

JOAN DAVIES COOPER

Joan Cooper was born on 12th August, 1914, at no 38, The Square, Moravian Settlement, Fairfield, to Valentine Holland Cooper and Louise Wynnefred Gardner who had married on 27th August, 1913. Her father served in the 1st World War, and she was educated at the Settlement before moving on to Fairfield School. From there, she studied Arts and History at Manchester University gaining a BA. She did Teacher Training, and in 1939 she was a Secondary School teacher living at 5, Berries' Mount, Bude-Stratton: she was also a nursing auxillary for the ARP. She died in Brighton on 15th January, 1999.

She was moved by the plight of children 'deprived of a normal home life' by the 2nd World War. Aged 27, in 1941, she was Assistant Director of Education in Derbyshire. She was appointed as the first Children's Officer for East Sussex in 1948. Joan had a role in the Children's Officers' Association helping to inaugurate what became the National Children's Bureau in 1963. She initiated imaginative work through the Community Development Project. She was the Director of all Social Work Services within the Department of Health and Social Security in 1970 being the Government's chief professional advisor on all social work. She had no time for 'fudge' or shallow thinking.

The Dictionary of National Biography describes her as 'one of the greatest social workers of the twentieth century'. She was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath in 1976 when she retired. But she enrolled as a mature student at the National Institute for Social Work. From 1979-87 she was involved with Parents for Children, from 1984-6 she chaired the Central Council for Education and Training. In 1998, aged 84, she was involved with the celebration of 50 years of Social Work: she was an Honorary Research Fellow from 1979 until her death.

'Children mattered to her, not only collectively, but as individuals'.

Researcher: Anne McGarry

Christine Roberts was born in Ashton in 1946. She married Harry Duffin in 1993, in Rugby. He was Head of Development for Cloud 9 in New Zealand, and later wrote for a wide range of TV programmes including Coronation Street. They retired to Spain, but now live in Stratford-upon-Avon.

After a range of jobs, she entered the prison service a prison officer in 1978 and was posted to Styal Prison but soon became a trainee Governor. Her first posting was to a male Borstal in Market Drayton which was not welcomed by staff, but after that she was posted to HMP Strangeways as the first female Governor Grade. After a period of 5 years at Strangeways, she became the first female Governor Grade at HMP Dartmoor.

She became a Trainee Governor specialising in training hostage negotiators, and later trained Prison Officers at the Prison Service College. She also went to Guernsey to train a group of staff to run their new prison. She was the Assistant General Secretary of the Prison Governors' Association. She spent a year on secondment to The Care and Resettlement of Offenders [NACRO] and after taking early retirement she worked with the Prison Reform Trust before leaving for Spain.

She has written a book of mainly amusing anecdotes 'Jail Tails'.

ANNA/NINA de GARIS DAVIES

Anna Macpherson Cummings was born in Salonika on 6th January, 1881, to Cecil J and Sarah: the eldest of 3 daughters. Her father was working with another Englishman helping the Turkish authorities to develop experimental farming. They returned to Scotland following the death of her father in 1894. The girls attended a private school in Bedford before they moved to London so she could study art. In 1901, they were living at 15, Welbeck Mansions, Hampstead when, aged 20, she gave her occupation as Deciphering Assistant, Turkey. In 1906, she took a holiday in Alexandria where she met Norman de Garis Davies. They married on 8th October, 1908, in Hampstead at Emmanuel Church, and in the same year she completed her first tomb painting. They moved to Ashton where Norman was a Congregational minister at The Albion Church. But they later returned to the Theban Necropolis to document the tomb paintings. In 1939, they were living at The Copse, Hinksey Hill, Berkshire. In the war years she was a VAD at her local First Aid Post. Norman died in 1941 leaving her £12,249. She died on 21st April, 1965, leaving £58,444.

She was a noted and talented painter of images in the tombs. Using egg tempera to give the correct opaque look, she spent ½ her time completing drawings for the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and ½ for Alan Gardiner replicating tomb paintings co-writing with him The Tomb of Amenemtot and The Tomb of Huy. The first solo exhibition of her work was at the V & A in 1923, followed by exhibitions in Brussels and Oxford. In 1926-7, Nina and Norman joined the Egypt Exploration Society at Armana again working on replicating the tomb paintings: as they both signed their work N de Garis Davies, some of the authorship can not be proved! She spent the 2nd World War cataloguing the textile collection of PE Newberry. Following her husband's death, she gave his collection of Egyptian objects to the Ashmolean and his books to University College, London. Later, some of his papers were given to the Griffith's Institute.

EDITH MARY OLDHAM ELLIS

Edith Mary Oldham Lees was the daughter of Samuel Oldham Lees and Mary Letitia Bancroft who died after giving birth to her in 1861. She was baptised at Newton in Mottram on 13th April 1861. Her father described himself as a collier and a gentleman. Following her father's remarriage, she was sent to a convent school, and then to school in London. In 1881, she inherited £150 giving her some independence.

In 1884 she was a founder member of the Fabian Society which was to include George Bernard Shaw, Charles Trevelyan and HG Wells. She was a writer and women's rights activist.

She met Havelock Ellis in 1887 marrying him in November, 1891. Theirs was an open marriage. Havelock described her as 'small, compact active person scarcely 5' in height with a fine skin, singularly well-shaped head with curly hair, powerful hand, very small feet and large pale blue eyes. At the time of the 1911 census they were living at Rose Cottage, Carbis Bay, Cornwall when she described herself as an author and dramatist and he as an author.

She was living at 28, Sandringham Court, Maida Vale when she died in Paddington on 14th September, 1916, aged 55 suffering from diabetes following a nervous breakdown. Her service was held at Golder's Green Crematorium. Probate was to Algernon West and Isabella Farina. She left £397.

MANDA GOODWIN

Amanda Jane Goodwin was born in the Ashton area in 1964 to Derek and Dorothy Goodwin. She attended Fairfield School before moving to Manchester High School to complete her A levels. She gained a Ph.D. in bioinorganic chemistry from Manchester University in 1989: her thesis being on Synthetic Studies of the Oxo-Molybdoenzymes. She is married with 2 sons, one of whom is studying medicine, and the other is an accomplished musician – they have lived in the north Yorkshire since 2005. She is a member of the Royal Society of Chemistry and a chartered chemist.

Manda moved out of the area in 1989 joining ICI as a Polymer Research Scientist. She made a move in 1994 into Conoco Ltd, an oil company owned by DuPont, moving to London as a Crude Oil Market Analyst. The following year she joined the trading team as a ‘black oils’ trader: the first female Oil Trader for Conoco in the UK. After 4 years, she made another internal move to Government Lobbying in which she debated possible Acts of Parliament affecting the oil and gas industry working with MPs, civil servants, regulators and members of the House of Lords. In 2003, Manda moved to Aberdeen, with her young family, to carry out a commercial role negotiating new off-shore developments in the North Sea. By 2005, she was the Procurement, Warehousing and Commercial Manager at the Seal Sands Refinery in the North East of England. In 2009, she returned to Aberdeen as Asset Manager responsible for 10 off-shore fields. Manda returned to London in 2011 as Commercial Development Director negotiating with governments in Kazakhstan, Azerbaijan and Russia. She is currently Head of European Gas Regulatory Affairs, Financial Compliance and Tanker Scheduling also managing the Facilities Team in the London Office. At present she is heavily involved with the effects Brexit may have on the oil industry.

Nicola Jane Taylor was raised in Ashton and Stalybridge: the daughter of Elizabeth née Connor and Philip Taylor. She married Michael John Graham at Albion United Reform Church, Ashton, in 2006. She worked in the Travel industry for over 25 years.

With her husband, she set up Reuben's retreat just 2 days following the death of their son from a brain tumour in 2012. She didn't want his life to be in vain and wanted to help other families that had life-threatened children or were bereaved of a child.

Reuben's Retreat is based at what was Wood's Hospital in 1.63 acres in Glossop. It is a haven for families and friends of children who have an uncertain future and is a place where they can relax, recharge batteries and make memories. It also serves as a bereavement, counselling, and support centre for parents and siblings who have lost a child. The charity has gone from strength to strength completing 3 of its 10 phased £3.5million renovation project. The more renovation, the delivery of more support work.

As of July 2018, it had supported over 600 individuals and raised over£2.4 million. Their patrons are Julie Hesmondhalgh and Ian Kershaw who are well supported by volunteers and a full-time staff of 5. It is a well loved and supported charity which has won The Points of Light Award, 2015, Inspirational Awards of Women, 2014, Pride of Britain Fundraiser Award, 2014, National family Hero, 2013, and Community Award – Inspiring Women, 2013.

ELIZABETH HANNAH KENYON

Elizabeth Hannah Darlington was born in 1854 to Charles Edward Livesey Darlington and Sarah Littlewood in Stonecliffe, Lancashire. She had 4 sisters and 5 brothers. She married George Henry Kenyon in Haslingden in 1875. They were the parents of 4 sons: Arnold [1876], Ernest [1878], Percy [1879] and George Henry [1883]. In 1891, the family was living at 139 Higher King Street, Dukinfield. Ten years later, they were living at 21, Fairfield Square, Droylsden, and George's niece, Norah Rigby was living with them as she was in 1911 when they had moved to Holly Bank, Currier Lane, Ashton: George[62] was a rope manufacturer, Elizabeth was 56, Arnold [35] was a cashier and work's secretary, George Henry [28] was a mechanical engineer and Norah was 22. Also living with them was Elizabeth's mother, Sarah, and Lorna Elizabeth [6] her grand-daughter who had been born in Mexico. Her youngest son, George, enlisted in the Cheshire Regiment in 1916. George Henry died in 1917, and she died at Holly Bank on 20th November, 1935 leaving £11,159.

There is a collection of letters in Tameside Archives from Dukinfield soldiers fighting in the 1st World War thanking her for her many kindnesses to them. She was the Chairwoman of the local Needlework Guild and as such provided each soldier with 2 shirts, 2 pairs of socks and some with scarves. Her husband was Mayor of Dukinfield and she was his Mayoress. Following his death in May, 1917, she took over his role for the rest of the year. She remained Mayoress until her death. She took a very active role in both political and public activities in the borough. She was the first lady in the Chair of the Board of Guardians in 1922, and was on various children and hospital committees. Lady Kenyon was a JP in Cheshire and a Freeman of the Borough.

Her husband was a rope manufacturer in Dukinfield. A firm which is still extant: their ropes were used for the Everest Expedition in 1953, and the firm was visited by Edmund Hillary. Queen Elizabeth II also visited the works.

PHYLLIS KERSHAW

Phyllis Hawkins was born in 1921 in Ashton to Thomas Hawkins and Rose Lillian Barker. She gained a scholarship to Fairfield School in 1931 where she excelled in German. The family later moved to Collyhurst. In 1939 they were living at 484, Rochdale Road where her father was the newsagent. Her mother died following the Manchester Blitz. Phyllis married Jack Donald Kershaw at Ryecroft Independent Chapel in 1951. They had four children: Lillian, Neil, Andy and Diane. She always taught her daughters the importance of the Suffragette Movement and insisted they trained for a profession. She and Jack were living at 14, St Asaph's Drive, Ashton in 2008. They were living at Carrbrook, Stalybridge, when she died on 26th August, 2011, aged 90.

At the outbreak of the 2nd World War, she joined the ATS, and was transferred to the Y Service [Wireless Intelligence]. She was trained in advanced Morse Code on the Isle of Man for 6 months before being posted to Kedleston Hall, Derbyshire, and Beaumont Hall, Leicestershire, where she intercepted enemy messages which were then forwarded to Bletchley Park. She became a comptometer operator following the War. In 2009, she was awarded a commemorative medal recognising her service 64 years after the event!

Hannah Buckley was born on 27th April, 1764 the daughter of John Buckley, Millowner, Oldham. She married Samuel Lees Jnr on Christmas Day, 1783. They built Park Bridge House [later Dean House]. They had 12 children but tragedy struck in 1800 when 3 of her children died within 2 months. Her husband died in 1804 leaving her with 6 surviving children. He was the owner of Park Bridge Ironworks and left her between £600-£800, and the administration of the business. The family fell under the influence of the prophet/charlatan John Wroe and Hannah's daughter gave birth to his child who was a daughter and not the promised messiah. Hannah died in 1831.

At the time of her death, Hannah was the owner of the earliest and largest ironworks in Manchester. The firm developed from producing iron bars to an engineering works producing rollers for the textile industry, and iron billets etc. Samuel Lees had left the business to Edward, the oldest son, but it was Hannah to whom the lease was transferred by the Stamford Estate, and it prospered under her care. Edward and Harry also ran their own businesses but it was Samuel who expanded Hannah Lees & Sons even further so that it encompassed a neighbouring colliery and rail link to the Oldham/Ashton Railway.

The family business finally closed in 1963.

ANNIE BUCKLEY MARLAND-BRODIE

Ann Buckley Marland was born on 22nd November, 1861 to William Marland [a stone mason] and Nancy Buckley who had married in Rochdale. She had 3 sisters: Mary Ann [1852], Sarah [1853] and Ada [1864]. She was born at Lane Head, Knott Lane, Ashton but the family soon moved to Saddleworth then Mossley living at Egerton Street by 1881 – 10 years later, she was living with her widowed oldest sister.

Annie was a ½ timer aged 10 and worked in a cardroom for 15 years. She was a union member paying 1/- a week. She married Robert Brodie on 12th June, 1895 in Mossley but kept her maiden name. She was given away by Lady Dike. Their son Roy was born in 1898 when they lived at Egremont. In 1902 she suffered her second serious illness. In 1911, they were living in Essex with Robert working as an estate agent and auctioneer. She left for Florida in the 20s, and died in Tampa in 1947 aged 86. She was described as bubbling over with good humour.

She was a popular organiser for the Women's Trade Union League and a supporter of women's suffrage. She became Secretary of the Women's Liberal Association which had formed in Mossley in 1889. In 1891, she attended a conference in London where she refuted speakers who slighted mill girls. Following this, she was taken up by Lady Dike to organise female workers at a salary of £72pa. Two years later she attended the TUC on behalf of the Mossley Card and Blowing Room Operatives being the first woman to represent a textile union. In 1895, she severed her links with the Liberal party to support Labour representation. In 1901, she was living at Eastham, London and gave her occupation as a Trade Union Lecturer.

HANNAH MITCHELL

Hannah Maria Webster was born in Hope Woodlands, Derbyshire, on 11th February, 1872, to Benjamin Webster and Ann Nixon. She lived on Elizabeth Street. She was not allowed to go to school but her father taught her to read. Her relationship with her mother was poor, so she soon left home to live with her married brother, Will. Then she moved to Bolton working as a seamstress and domestic servant. Whilst working for a teacher's family she joined the library and was allowed to read his books becoming her own teacher. She married Gibbon Mitchell [a native of Dukinfield in Bolton in 1895 where her son Frank Gibbon Mitchell was born. She also took in her orphaned niece. She later stated that married life...calls for a degree of self-abnigation which was impossible for me. In 1900 they moved from Burton-upon-Trent to Ashton where they lived until 1910 moving to Ingham Street, Newton Heath. She died on 22nd October, 1956. She left £1,232 to her bank manager son, Frank.

Hannah Mitchell is a well known suffragette, socialist, and pacifist. For a time she worked as a part-time organiser for Emmeline and Christabel Pankhurst and their Women's Social and Political Union. She toured the country tirelessly campaigning, but had a breakdown in 1907 caused by overwork and under-nourishment. Ignored by the Pankhursts, she was visited by Charlotte Despard who saw to her treatment and gave the family monies for food. Recovered, she joined Charlotte's Women's Freedom League. She supported the peace movement during the war. After 1st World War, she was elected to Manchester City Council for the Independent Labour Party and in 1926 was made Magistrate a position she held until 1935. She also worked for Keir Hardie. In 1939, she organised a meeting for 40 surviving suffragettes.

Her grandson, Geoffrey, edited her autobiography in 1969. A blue plaque was put up for her in Ashton. In 2012 the Hannah Mitchell Foundation was formed for the development of a dissolved North of England.

Mary Smith was born on 24th May, 1795. She was the only daughter of a prosperous nursery gardener living at Plantation Farm, Dukinfield. She was a devout Christian and attended Fairfield School shewing a keen interest in missionary work. In 1816, Robert Moffat, a Scot, arrived to work with her father. He asked her father if he would do for Africa and sailed for South Africa later that year. Mary had tried to persuade him to marry, and Robert: a missionary without a wife in South Africa is like a boat without an oar agreed. In 1818, she sailed out to join him and they soon married. They travelled 700 miles by ox-cart to Lattukoo a missionary station. They had 9 children. They travelled home whilst their children were at school. They returned to South Africa in 1843. In 1845, their daughter Mary married missionary David Livingston. Robert and Mary finally returned to England in 1870 but she couldn't adjust to English village life. She died 5 months later on 10th January, 1870 in Brixton. Her husband died on 9th August, 1898.

Whilst in South Africa, she built the respect of the local tribesmen. In 1828, they moved to a new mission station near Kuruman complete with school, church and dwelling houses. They created an oasis, and the most successful mission of its day. Its church was the cathedral of the Kalahari built from hand-quarried stone and timber gifted by Matabele Chief Mzilikazi who was a lifelong friend. Robert was praised for defending the tribes from predatory colonists.

In 1998, a Blue Plaque was unveiled at Plantation Farm, and another at Fairfield School.

MARGARET CONSTANCE MARY MORTON

Constance 'Maggie' Ewa/ert was born in Invergordon, Rossshire. Her mother was born in St Helen's, and her father was a ventriloquist. She married Joseph Thomas Vollam Morton who was to be the editor of the Ashton-u-Lyne Herald 1889/90 previously the Stalybridge and Ashton Herald and Dukinfield, Mossley, Millbrook and District News – a conservative journal under the auspices of Thomas Machell, the Conservative Mayor of Stalybridge who died in 1897. Her date of birth is debateable as she gives different ages on different documents. The 1891 census shows her living at 46, Stamford Rd aged 26, with Joseph [sub-editor] and her widowed mother Ann Ewart aged 59. They later moved to 17, Chester Square, Ashton. Their son, Henry Canova Vollam Morton was born in 1892, and their daughter Marguerite in 1896. By 1901, they had moved to 334, Bury New Road, Broughton. Ten years later, they were living in 12 roomed Heathfield, 23 Alcester Road Birmingham and Joseph was the editor of the Birmingham Gazette. Constance died in Colchester in 1918 when her age was given as 48.

But it is the years that she spent in Ashton that mark her out. She was very concerned by the amount of child poverty in the town. This 'gentle but imperious' lady contributed to a children's column of her husband's paper writing poems and stories, and in 1891, there was a child's subscription to provide food etc for the 'poor' children and young patients in the hospital as part of the Kind Hearted Band which in a matter of weeks had over 2,000 members. The sad thing was that no liberal would support a motion in a Tory paper. In February, 1894, she organised the sale of self-photos using monies to organise girls to make quilts for the children's hospital, monies for treatment and to endow a cot. Cots were also endowed by Ada Summers and Bertha Mason. In 1896, she organised a 3 day bazaar in the Armoury. She was supported by Princess Mary Adelaide of Teck who sent a box of beautiful and useful items. The aim was to endow a cot at Kershaw's Childrens' Hospital in Ashton. She also supported the introduction of a piano and the development of false limbs. But she was little appreciated when they left for Salford in 1897.

Jane Ashton was born in 1966 to Frank and Marjorie in Stalybridge. She was educated at Staley Hill, Astley Grammar School and Hyde Grammar 6th Form. She married Graham Nelson in 1987 and is the mother of 2 sons.

She qualified as an accountant in 1991. She is FCCA and FCMA qualified. In 1995, she joined The Oddfellows as their Financial Controller eventually becoming their Financial Director. In 2012, she became their first female CEO. In 2013, she gained the UK award for the Diploma of Institute of Directors: the top in the UK.

She is the Vice Chair of the Association of Financial Mutuals.

She is Trustee of Stalybridge Celtic Foundation.

The Oddfellows was established in the early 17th Century: a fraternal society representing craftsmen from a range of trades. As a mutual, it has no shareholders. A branch surgeon provided medical treatment for members and their families. In 1810, it transferred to Manchester. In 1893, it had female branches with equal status to men. In 1912, it was one of the Government approved societies to administer Nation Insurance. In 2013, it became an Incorporated Friendly Society, and moved to Deansgate. According to Google, it has a current value of £500 million pounds, and has 140 branches in the UK.

PAT PHOENIX

Patricia Frederica Manfield was born on 26th November 1923 in Fallowfield to Thomas Manfield and Anne Maria Josephine Noonan. She attended Fallowfield Central School but the poor relationship with her step-mother turned her thoughts to the theatre. She worked as a filing clerk for Manchester Corporation. She married Peter Marsh in 1951, Alan Browning in 1972, and her long time friend, Anthony Booth, just 8 days before her death on 17th September, 1986. She was 62. A Roman Catholic, she was buried at St Peter and St Paul, Crosby. She had lived in Hollingworth. She had been a life long member of the Labour Party.

Her first performance was on Children's Hour when she performed a monologue she had written. Later she attended the Manchester Arts Theatre and other northern Reps. Her break came in 1948 when she worked with Joan Littlewood's Theatre Workshop. She returned to Manchester in 1960. She changed her name and was given the role of Elsie Tanner in Coronation Street. PM James Callaghan called her 'the sexiest thing on television'. She left the programme in 1984 doing other TV and film work. Suffering from lung cancer, she still carried on working until her death.

BEATRIX POTTER

Helen Beatrix Potter was born in Kensington on 28th July, 1866. She was the grand-daughter of Glossop's Edmund Potter the owner of the largest Calico Printers in England, and an MP. Her father Rupert, was a barrister. In 1863 he married Helen Leech at Hyde Unitarian Church, Hyde Gee Cross. She was the daughter of John Leech, a mill owner and shipbuilder from Stalybridge: Gorse Hall. Beatrix was born at 2, Bolton Gardens, where her brother was born in 1872. They grew up isolated from other children in an artistic household which had a passion for nature taking their holidays in Scotland and the Lake District. She also visited her grandparents in Stalybridge. Beatrix and Walter had many pets including rabbits, mice and hedgehogs. She had 3 governesses, the last one, Annie Carter, teaching her German and acting as a companion. She had a life long interest in nature, science and conservation. She was taught watercolour painting and made many sketches of the wild life around her including fungi which became a scientific study. She was also well read in the old sagas, fairy tales and was a student of classic stories. Whilst on holiday in the lake District, she met Hardwicke Rawnsley the founding secretary of the National Trust. In 1905, she bought Hill Top Farm in Nr Sawrey. In 1913, she married William Heelis, a local solicitor. She died at home on 22nd December, 1943 of pneumonia and heart failure. She left her property to the National Trust.

Beatrix was a writer, illustrator, natural scientist and conservationist. She is best known for her 23 children's tales though she wrote 30 books in all and a selection of scientific studies. Age 14, she was writing her diary in her own code. In 1887 she submitted a paper to the Linnean Society On the Germination of the Spores of the Agaricineae but as she had been rebuffed by the Director of Kew because of her gender, it was to be read by Masee: she was well respected in the field of mycology. She sent illustrated letters to the children of Annie Carter, and it was these that led to the publication of her first story: The Tale of Peter Rabbit which she had self published in her 30s. Her publisher being Frederick Warne & Co. She purchased several farms in her local area to preserve the local landscape, and was a breeder of the native Herdwick sheep.

SUSAN PRIEST

Susan Priest née Heeny was born in 1954: she is one of a family of 6. She married David Priest in 1984 and is the mother of 3 grown-up children, has grandchildren and a great grandson. The family originally lived in Hyde but later moved to Bardsley. They downsized to Park Bridge where she is near to her 95 year old mother who lives independently in Waterloo. They have a Jack Russell.

Susan has worked for the NHS for 44 years: 40 of those as a midwife mostly in Tameside Maternity Unit and in the community. She took a year's sabbatical to work in the Middle East.

She qualified with a Certificate in Midwifery and a BSc [Hons] whilst studying and working full time. She was a Supervisor of Midwives for several years mentoring fellow midwives and students. She benefitted from many of the changes in midwifery including 3D Ultrasound IT Technology and on-line education. Today's midwives need to be academically and clinically competent which poses challenges for the future.

As a Community Midwife, she witnessed many changes affecting women and families such as the Sure Start programme, and its demise. The 1970 Peel Report encouraged women to have their babies in hospital and 1993 Changing Childbirth Report offered choice to women. Clinical changes brought about changes in clinical practise with midwives becoming skilled and autonomous practitioners. Since the early 1990s, she has been involved with the conception of the Bereavement Service for women and families in Tameside Maternity Unit setting up the Harebell Suite: a discreet and self-contained facility providing privacy during and following birth, set up by a Trust Fund not only to furnish the suite but to fund midwives on study days. This is augmented by The Care and Support Circle which is a self-help/support service. The multi-faith, Annual Baby Memorial Service has been held for 21 years. These innovations in service provision have been recognised by other maternity units in the north-west, and following publication other units have now adopted this flagship for maternity services throughout the country.

They live in Stalybridge from where she can see the moors. For a special birthday, she had a flight in a Tiger Moth, a real family occasion, as it was the same type of aircraft that her father, an RAF pilot in WW2, trained on.

She has a keen interest in the First World War and in the 1920s and is the author of the Jack Haldean murder mysteries, set in the 1920s and a WW1 mystery/spy series. A regular speaker at the British Library's Day celebrating the Golden Age of detective fiction. Dolores has also contributed to American podcasts about detective and fantasy fiction.

EXCEPTIONAL OTHERS

FRANCES LOCKETT

Frances Lockett was born in 1910. She lived in a 2 up-2down in Hyde where her father was a policeman. She left school at 14 to work as a weaver. In 1931, she returned to work at J & J Ashton Mills, Hyde. In 1937, she married policeman James Burgess and lived at Queen Street, Hyde.

To promote the cotton industry, in 1930 the towns of the north-west decided to hold a 3 week event in Blackpool to select a Cotton Queen who would attend exhibitions, fashion parades, public events etc representing their industry. It would be open to cotton girls between the ages of 16-26. Frances, aged 19, was tall, graceful, and modest with a sense of humour and so impressed that she was chosen as the first Cotton Queen. Returning home, she was mobbed by a crowd of 20,000. In her year she travelled widely meeting a variety of celebrities including the Prime Minister.

CHRISTINE McQUEEN SISTER SCHOLASTICA

Trying to find personal details of Christine is difficult. She was supposedly born and brought in Droylsden, but the only Christine McQueen was named Mavis Christine, and was born in 1945. She was definitely educated at Fairfield school and gained a Masters Degree in Philosophy.

She became a nun taking the name Sister Scholastica. She joined the Benedictine Abbey at Frauenworh, Bavaria. In 2016, she became the Director of the Abbey. She was the head of the Seminar Programme at the Neuroinformatics Jamboree.

OUR FOREIGN ALLIES

THE SECOND WORLD WAR

ESTHER MARIE ALLARD

Esther Marie Allard was born in 1925 to Mr and Mrs Cyrille Allard. She had a brother, Philip, who was killed whilst training to be a pilot in the 2nd World War. The family escaped from France in May, 1940, and lived at 'Langherne', Heyheads.

She helped with a WVS canteen and spent 18 months at a Civil Defence First Aid Post. Esther joined up with the Corps Feminine Aerieenne in October, 1943, and was based at the London HQ. She was sent to France in September, 1944.

Auxilaire Allard died in Paris in February, 1945, and was buried in the Pantin Military Cemetery. She is commemorated by St James', Millbrook.

NINETTE HEAP

Nellie Gladys Langley was born on 1st January, 1922, to John and Marguerite: she had a brother, Norman. John was a mill manager in 1939, living at Rock Bank, Mossley. His wife was French, and this was to have a great influence on Ninette's future. She married Alan Heap at the Unitarian Chapel on Stamford Street in 1945. They had 2 children: Marguerite and Philip. She died in 1997 aged 74.

Ninette is the most enigmatic of our women. She actively served in the 2nd World War and was honoured by the French, but she was always reticent of her service. She taught for many years at Saddleworth School and was a loved teacher and colleague.

This booklet was compiled by Gay Oliver and Kate Booth in 2018 for the anniversary of when some women got the vote, with the invaluable input from members of the Tameside Local History Forum, which also funded the publication, and from Tameside Archives

Gay Oliver

Has been a member of the Forum from almost its inception. She is our Web-Site Manager, and responsible for co-ordinating most of the group's activities on line. She has many interests and is constantly researching her personal interests which include her own family history [including the Stanleys, and Irish immigration], local issues, people and places of note [including the Dukinfields and their links to the slave trade, Egyptologists and John Wroe] and local politics. She is Chair of the local Family History Society which meets monthly in Dukinfield, and as such attends the Cheshire Family History Society as our local representative. She is an accomplished lecturer to local groups and ran courses on Family History.

Kate Booth

Has been a member since 2008. She has written several books mostly concerning the village of Millbrook, and the 300 soldiers missing from Stalybridge War Memorial. She has correlated the Tameside soldiers who were casualties of the 1st World War and is working on identifying the survivors. She has given talks to local groups on such themes as The Influenza Outbreak of 1918, and local men killed on the first day of the Somme. She wrote and produced a play based on children's experiences in the 1st World War working with pupils in Yr6 of Buckton Vale who presented a memorable performance. She is currently working with a group from the Forum on the celebration in 2019 of The Battle of Peterloo.
